BRAD STEVENS
Head Coach

BRAD STEVENS begins his sixth season as Head Coach for the Boston Celtics. He was named the 17th head coach in the history of the Boston Celtics on July 3, 2013.

In his fifth season in Boston, Stevens led the Celtics to a 55-27 record and a second consecutive appearance in the Eastern Conference Finals and one game from appearing in the NBA Finals after a Game 7 loss to the Cleveland Cavaliers in the ECF. This marked the first time that the Celtics had made consecutive appearances in the Eastern Conference Finals since the 1986-87 and 1987-88 seasons. Stevens' record with the Celtics over five seasons now stands at 221-189 (.539).

In his fourth season in Boston, Stevens led the Celtics to an Eastern Conference-best record of 53-29 record as well as an appearance in the Eastern Conference Finals against Cleveland. Stevens earned the honor of coaching the Eastern Conference All-Star team for the 2017 NBA All-Star Game in New Orleans. He is the sixth Celtics head coach to earn the honor joining Red Auerbach, Tom Heinsohn, K.C. Jones, Doc Rivers, Bill Fitch and Chris Ford.

In his third season with the Celtics, Stevens led the team to a playoff appearance and finished with a 48-34 record. He became just the third coach in franchise history to win NBA Coach of the Month multiple times when he was named the Eastern Conference Coach of the Month for the second time during the month of February when the team posted an Eastern Conference-best 9-3 record. Stevens recorded his first career playoff victory on April 22 when they beat the Atlanta Hawks 111-103 in Boston.

In his second season with the Celtics, Stevens led the team to a playoff appearance with a furious finish to the season. After starting the season 16-30 the team finished the season 23-12 to clinch the seventh seed in the Eastern Conference. During the month of April when the team was 7-1 he was named the Eastern Conference Coach of the Month and became the fifth Celtic Head Coach to win the award joining K.C. Jones, Jimmy Rodgers, Chris Ford and Glenn "Doc" Rivers.

Stevens, 39, joined the Celtics after coaching Butler University where he boasted a 166-49 record, four league regular season championships, three league tournament titles and six trips to post-season tournament play. He has the top two single season win totals in Butler and Horizon League history, and he became the only coach in school history to lead a team to the NCAA Division I national championship game which he did twice.

Stevens owns two Horizon League Coach of the Year awards and has rewritten the NCAA record book for Best Coaching Starts by Wins. During the 2012-13 season, he moved into the top spot on the six-year list with 165 victories. He captured the five-year record (139), moving ahead of Everett Case of North Carolina State (1947-51) in 2011-12, and he owns the three-year (89) and four-year (117) records. He is second on the two-year list with 56 wins.

Stevens left a position as a marketing associate at Eli Lilly and Company in Indianapolis to pursue a career in basketball coaching. He served in a volunteer capacity in Butler's basketball office during the summer of 2000, before eventually gaining a full-time administrative position under Thad Matta. Stevens joined the Bulldogs' staff in 2000-01 as coordinator of basketball operations, handling a variety of administrative duties. He was offered a full-time assistant coaching position by Todd Lickliter in 2001-02. Stevens worked with Lickliter for six seasons spanning from 2001-07. During Stevens' tenure as an assistant coach with the Bulldogs, Butler compiled a 131-61 record, won three Horizon League regular season championships and made four trips to post-season tournament play.

Stevens was introduced as the new men's basketball head coach at Butler University on April 4, 2007, just three days after his former boss, Todd Lickliter, was named head coach at the University of Iowa. He became the third consecutive former Butler assistant coach to be named head coach of the Bulldogs, and he served under the previous two - Thad Matta and Lickliter.

In his debut season with Butler (2007-08) he guided Butler to their first 30-win season. The Bulldogs were ranked in the "Top 25" of the AP and ESPN/USA Today national polls for 19 consecutive weeks, including a record three weeks in the "Top 10". At the age of 31, he became the third-youngest Division I coach to guide his team to 30 wins and was the youngest coach to do so in more than half a century. During the 2009-10 season he was named the NABC All-District 12 Coach and was a finalist for several national coaching awards as Butler ended the season as the No. 2-ranked team in the final ESPN/USA Today national poll. The Bulldogs compiled a school record 25-game winning streak during the season which also was the longest winning streak in the nation that season. Butler switched conferences following a third-place finish in the 2011-12 season in the Horizon League with a move to the Atlantic-10 where they would finish with 26 wins and three "Top 10" victories including a win over in-state rival Indiana who were ranked No. 1 nationally at the time. Butler reached as high as No. 9 nationally in the AP and USA Today polls during the season.

Stevens earned a B.A. degree in economics from DePauw in 1999. He was a four-year member of the basketball team at DePauw, earning the squad's "Coaches Award" in 1998-99. He and his wife, Tracy, have two children, son Brady and daughter Kinsley.

This flu season, consider a flu shot designed specifically for adults 65 and older.[1]

As you age, your immune system may weaken. Traditional flu shots may not work as well for older adults compared to younger adults.[2,3]

FLUAD is a flu shot for adults 65 and older that contains an immune-enhancing ingredient and is proven to provide a strong immune response to help protect against the flu.[1]

FLUAD®
influenza vaccine, adjuvanted

Important Safety Information

What is FLUAD?

FLUAD is a vaccine that helps protect against the flu. FLUAD is for people aged 65 years and older. Vaccination with FLUAD may not protect all people who receive the vaccine.

Who should not get FLUAD?

You should not get FLUAD if you have had a severe allergic reaction to any of the ingredients in the vaccine in the past, including egg protein, or a severe reaction to a previous influenza vaccine.

Who may not be able to get FLUAD?

Tell your health care provider if you:

- Have ever had Guillain-Barré syndrome (severe muscle weakness) after getting a flu shot. The decision to give FLUAD should be made by your health care provider, based on careful consideration of the potential benefits and risks.
- Have an allergy to rubber latex. FLUAD does not contain latex, but the tip caps of the prefilled syringes contain natural rubber latex, which may cause an allergic reaction in persons sensitive to latex.

What if I have a weakened immune system?

Tell your health care provider if you have problems with your immune system, as your immune response to the vaccine may be reduced.

What are the most common side effects of FLUAD?

- Pain or tenderness where you got the shot
- Muscle aches
- Headache
- Fatigue

These are not all of the possible side effects of FLUAD. You can ask your health care provider for a complete list of possible side effects.

Ask your health care provider for advice about any side effects that concern you. You may report side effects to the Vaccine Adverse Events Reporting System (VAERS) by calling 1-800-822-7967 or by going to http://vaers.hhs.gov.

To report SUSPECTED ADVERSE REACTIONS, contact Seqirus Inc. at 1-855-358-8966 or VAERS at 1-800-822-7967 and http://vaers.hhs.gov.

FLUAD (Influenza Vaccine, Adjuvanted)

Suspension for Intramuscular Injection
2017-2018 Formula
Initial U.S. Approval: 2015

BRIEF SUMMARY:

See package insert for full prescribing information.

1 INDICATIONS AND USAGE

FLUAD is an inactivated influenza vaccine indicated for active immunization against influenza disease caused by influenza virus subtypes A and type B contained in the vaccine. FLUAD is approved for use in persons 65 years of age and older. Approval is based on the immune response elicited by FLUAD. Data demonstrating a decrease in influenza disease after vaccination with FLUAD are not available. [see Clinical Studies (14)]

4 CONTRAINDICATIONS

Do not administer FLUAD to anyone with a history of severe allergic reaction (e.g. anaphylaxis) to any component of the vaccine, including egg protein [see Description (11)], or to a previous influenza vaccine.

5 WARNINGS AND PRECAUTIONS

5.1 Guillain-Barré Syndrome

If Guillain-Barré syndrome (GBS) has occurred within 6 weeks of receipt of prior influenza vaccine, the decision to give FLUAD should be based on careful consideration of the potential benefits and risks. The 1976 swine influenza vaccine was associated with an elevated risk of GBS. Evidence for a causal relationship of GBS with other influenza vaccines is inconclusive; if an excess risk exists, it is probably slightly more than 1 additional case per 1 million persons vaccinated. [see References (1)]

5.2 Preventing and Managing Allergic Reactions

Appropriate medical treatment and supervision must be available to manage possible anaphylactic reactions following administration of the vaccine.

5.3 Latex

The tip caps of the prefilled syringes contain natural rubber latex which may cause allergic reactions in latex sensitive individuals. [see Description (11)]

5.4 Altered Immunocompetence

The immune response to FLUAD in immunocompromised persons, including individuals receiving immunosuppressive therapy, may be lower than in immunocompetent individuals. [see Concurrent Use With Immunosuppressive Therapies (7.2)]

5.5 Syncope

Syncope (fainting) may occur in association with administration of injectable vaccines including FLUAD. Ensure procedures are in place to avoid injury from falling associated with syncope.

5.6 Limitations of Vaccine Effectiveness

Vaccination with FLUAD may not protect all vaccine recipients against influenza disease.

6 ADVERSE REACTIONS

6.1 Clinical Trials Experience

Because clinical trials are conducted under widely varying conditions, the adverse reaction rates observed in the clinical trials of a vaccine cannot be directly compared to rates in the clinical trials of another vaccine and may not reflect rates observed in clinical practice.

Solicited adverse reactions were assessed in a multicenter, observer-blind, randomized controlled study (Study 1) conducted in the United States, Colombia, Panama and the Philippines. The safety analysis set included 3545 FLUAD recipients and 3537 AGRIFLU (Influenza Vaccine) recipients. The enrolled subject population in Study 1 was 65 to 97 years of age (mean 72 years) and 64% were female. Within each treatment group, 53% were Asian, 28% were Caucasian, 18% were Hispanic, 1% were Black, and fewer than 1% each were Native American/Alaskan, Pacific Islander/Hawaiian, or Other.

Solicited local (injection site) and systemic adverse reactions were collected from subjects in Study 1 who completed a symptom diary card for seven days following vaccination. The reported frequencies of solicited local and systemic adverse events from Study 1 are presented in Table 1.

[a] N = number of subjects with safety data.

[b] Moderate: pain, tenderness, myalgia, fatigue, headache, arthralgia, chills, nausea, vomiting defined as "some limitation in normal daily activity", diarrhea defined as "4 to 5 stools a day".

[c] Severe: pain, tenderness, myalgia, fatigue, headache, arthralgia, chills, nausea, vomiting defined as "unable to perform normal daily activity", diarrhea defined as "6 or more watery stools a day".

[d] Potentially life threatening (PLT) reaction defined as requiring emergency room visit or hospitalization.

Unsolicited Adverse Events (AEs): The clinical safety of FLUAD was assessed in fifteen (15) randomized, controlled studies. The total safety population in these trials included 10,952 adults 65 years of age and older, comprising 5,754 who received FLUAD and 5,198 who received other US licensed influenza vaccines. The percentage of subjects with an unsolicited AE within 30 days following vaccination was similar between vaccine groups (16.9% FLUAD vs. 18.0% active comparator).

Serious Adverse Events (SAEs) and Deaths: In Study 1, in which subjects were followed for SAEs and deaths for one year following vaccination (N=3,545 FLUAD, N=3,537 AGRIFLU), the percentages of subjects with an SAE were similar between vaccine groups (7% FLUAD vs. 7% AGRIFLU). Four SAEs (1 FLUAD and 3 AGRIFLU) were assessed as related to study vaccination over one year of observation and 2 of these occurred (1 FLUAD and 1 AGRIFLU) within 21 days following study vaccination. There were 98 deaths (n=52 FLUAD, n=46 AGRIFLU) over one year of which none occurred within the first 21 days following vaccination.

In 14 additional randomized, controlled studies, SAEs were collected over a 3 to 4-week period in 4 studies, over a 8-week period in 1 study, and over a 6-month period in 9 studies (N= 2,209 FLUAD, N=1,661 US licensed influenza vaccines). The percentages of subjects with an SAE within 30 days (1.1% FLUAD vs. 1.8% AGRIFLU) or within 6 months (4.3% FLUAD vs. 5.9% AGRIFLU) were similar between vaccine groups. The percentages of deaths within 30 days (0.3% FLUAD vs. 0.6% active comparator) or within 6 months (1.0% FLUAD vs. 1.5% active comparator) were also similar.

Adverse Events of Special Interest (AESIs): Rates of new onset neuroinflammatory and immune mediated diseases were assessed in a post hoc analysis of the 15 randomized controlled studies over the time periods specified above for SAEs. The percentage of subjects with an AESI at any time after vaccination was similar between vaccine groups (0.9% FLUAD vs. 0.9% active comparator). There were no notable imbalances for specific AESIs.

Safety of Annual Revaccination: In 5 of the randomized, controlled trials, subjects were followed for SAEs and deaths for 6 months following revaccination (N=492 FLUAD, N=330 US licensed and non-US licensed influenza vaccines). After the second annual vaccination, the percentages of subjects with an SAE were similar between vaccine groups (6.1% FLUAD vs. 5.5% comparator influenza vaccines); 23 deaths (n=17 FLUAD, n=6 comparator influenza vaccines) were reported. Causes of death included cardiovascular events, malignancy, trauma, gastrointestinal disorders, and respiratory failure. Clinical characteristics of the deaths, including the variable causes, timing since vaccination, and underlying medical conditions, do not provide evidence for a causal relationship with FLUAD.

6.2 Postmarketing Experience

The following adverse events have been spontaneously reported during post-approval use of FLUAD in Europe and other regions since 1997.

Because these events are reported voluntarily from a population of uncertain size, it is not always possible to reliably estimate their frequency or establish a causal relationship to the vaccine.

Blood and lymphatic system disorders:
Thrombocytopenia (some cases were severe with platelet counts less than 5,000 per mm^3), lymphadenopathy

General disorders and administration site conditions:
Extensive swelling of injected limb lasting more than one week, injection site cellulitis-like reactions (some cases of swelling, pain, and redness extending more than 10 cm and lasting more than 1 week)

Immune system disorders:
Allergic reactions including anaphylactic shock, anaphylaxis and angioedema

Musculoskeletal and connective tissue disorders:
Muscular weakness

Nervous system disorders:
Encephalomyelitis, Guillain-Barré Syndrome, convulsions, neuritis, neuralgia, paraesthesia, syncope, presyncope

Skin and subcutaneous tissue disorders:
Generalized skin reactions including erythema multiforme, urticaria pruritus or non-specific rash

Vascular disorders:
Vasculitis with transient renal involvement

7 DRUG INTERACTIONS

7.1 Concomitant Use With Other Vaccines

There are no data to assess the concomitant administration of FLUAD with other vaccines. If FLUAD is to be given at the same time as other injectable vaccine(s), the vaccine(s) should be administered at different injection sites.

Do not mix FLUAD with any other vaccine in the same syringe.

7.2 Concurrent Use With Immunosuppressive Therapies

Immunosuppressive or corticosteroid therapies may reduce the immune response to FLUAD.

8 USE IN SPECIFIC POPULATIONS

8.1 Pregnancy

Pregnancy Category B: A reproductive and developmental toxicity study has been performed in rabbits with a dose level that was approximately 15 times the human dose based on body weight. The study revealed no evidence of impaired female fertility or harm to the fetus due to FLUAD. There are, however, no adequate and well-controlled studies in pregnant women. Because animal reproduction studies are not always predictive of human response, this vaccine should be used during pregnancy only if clearly needed.

In a reproductive and developmental toxicity study, the effect of FLUAD on embryo-fetal and post-natal development was evaluated in pregnant rabbits. Animals were administered FLUAD by intramuscular injection twice prior to gestation, during the period of organogenesis (gestation day 7) and later in pregnancy (gestation day 20), 0.5 mL (45 mcg)/rabbit/occasion (approximately 15-fold excess relative to the adult human dose based on body weight). No adverse effects on mating, female fertility, pregnancy, embryo-fetal development, or post-natal development were observed. There were no vaccine-related fetal malformations or other evidence of teratogenesis.

8.4 Pediatric Use

The safety and effectiveness of FLUAD in the pediatric population has not been established.

8.5 Geriatric Use

Safety and immunogenicity of FLUAD have been evaluated in adults 65 years of age and older. [See Adverse Reactions (6.1) and Clinical Studies (14)]

care

Defending dignity.
Fighting poverty.

At CARE, we've found that the poorest parts of the world are, invariably, places where women are still marginalized and not allowed a significant role.

That's why CARE today has embarked on a mission of global women's empowerment. To educate girls, and provide opportunities that will unleash the power women have to bring change to these areas.

But often, we have to be creative in how we do that. Loki, who lives in a remote Ethiopian village, has big dreams. But she also has to tend her family's herd of cattle and goats. If not, her family will suffer. She often walks 20 miles a day in search of water and grasslands. So rather than bring Loki to school, we bring school to Loki. We're establishing schoolrooms in nomadic villages that offer flexible hours, and move as the village moves.

Someday soon, girls like Loki will do remarkable things in Ethiopia. We'll keep finding ways to open the doors.

We're trying to create a world where every person has the opportunity to realize their potential. Because, in the end, that's the key to truly ending injustice and poverty.

SHE HAS the POWER to change her world.

YOU HAVE the POWER to help her do it.

2018-19 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

BY TAYLOR SNOW

THE BALL HANDLERS

The ball-handling position is arguably the most important role on the basketball court. These are the players who are responsible for facilitating the offense and controlling the pace. The Celtics have four players who can take on this role.

KYRIE IRVING

Kyrie Irving gave Celtics Nation a taste of dominant scoring and world-class handles during his inaugural, injury-shorted season in Boston. Now, fully recovered from knee surgery and chomping at the bit to return to the court, the five-time All-Star could produce an even more impressive campaign the second time around.

Irving averaged a team-high 24.4 points per game last season, while shooting 49.1 percent from the field, 40.8 percent from 3-point range, and dishing out 5.1 assists per game. He accomplished all of that despite dealing with persistent knee soreness caused by tension wire that had been implanted during a previous surgery in 2015.

In late March, Irving opted to go under the knife and remove the wire, marking an end to his phenomenal campaign. The offseason was a period of healing for the 26-year-old point guard, but now he's back at full health and is ready to run the Celtics' offense once again.

The fact that Irving was able to produce such impressive numbers and dazzling plays last season despite facing continual irritation indicates that his second season in green could be even more spectacular, as long as he maintains his health.

MARCUS SMART

Perfectly complementing Irving's explosive offense is the tenacious defense provided by his back-up, Marcus Smart.

With a new contract in hand, Smart will continue with his role as Boston's sixth man, being a glue guy off the bench who is capable of providing spot starts for Irving if needed.

Smart, too, was limited last season due to injury, having undergone hand surgery in mid-March. However, he was able to return to action midway through the first round of the Playoffs to help spark Boston on a tremendous postseason run.

Smart took on more of a playmaking role during his fourth season with the team, averaging 10.2 points, 3.5 rebounds and a career-high 4.8 assists per game over 54 regular season contests. As Boston's longest-tenured player, he has also developed into one of the team's primary vocal leaders, both on the court and in the locker room.

2018-19 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

TERRY ROZIER

Last season's injuries to both Irving and Smart opened up the door for Terry Rozier. The eager, young point guard seized the opportunity by bursting into the national spotlight with authority.

After spending the first two and a half seasons of his career as a role player, Rozier finally earned his way into the starting lineup during a Jan. 31 matchup against the New York Knicks. He answered the call with his first career triple-double, officially marking the birth of "Scary Terry."

Rozier lived up to his newfound moniker by averaging 15.1 points, 5.3 rebounds and 4.3 assists per game over the last 29 contests of the regular season, seeing 16 starts during that span. His success magnified during the postseason, as he started all 19 of Boston's playoff games and produced 16.5 PPG, 5.3 RPG and 5.7 APG.

Rozier's role will likely be reduced with the return of Irving, but his continuing development and contributions to last season's playoff run will surely enable him to earn significant playing time this coming season. He and Smart together should make one heck of a second-unit backcourt tandem with their collective tenacity and fearlessness on both ends of the court.

BRAD WANAMAKER

Brad Wanamaker may be a rookie by NBA terms, but the 29-year-old combo guard still has more professional experience under his belt than half of the Celtics roster.

After playing four years of college ball at the University of Pittsburgh, Wanamaker made his way over to Italy in 2011 to start his pro career. Over the course of seven years, he bounced around from France to Germany to Turkey, as well as a short stint in 2012 with the Austin Toros of the NBA G League (formerly the D-League).

Wanamaker collected numerous accolades while he was overseas, including the 2015 German Basketball Bundesliga Finals MVP, the 2016 German BBL MVP and the Turkish Finals MVP. He was also a two-time Turkish League All-Star, a two-time German BBL All-Star and the 2015 German BBL All-Star Game MVP. On top of that, he won two German BBL championships alongside Celtics big man Daniel Theis, one Turkish League championship and one D-League championship.

Last season in the Euroleague, Wanamaker averaged 11.3 points, 3.8 assists and 2.7 rebounds per game. The most valuable trait he has to offer is his versatility on both ends of the court, which should allow him to fit into Coach Brad Stevens' system seamlessly as either a ball handler or a wing.

THE WINGS

Wings are commonly the top shooters on the floor and are often relied upon to take on a heavy scoring load. Defensively, they'll typically be tasked with suppressing elite scorers on opposing teams. The Celtics currently have five players who can fill this role.

GORDON HAYWARD

After nearly a year of rehabbing from a left ankle injury that sidelined him for the entire 2017-18 season, Gordon Hayward's road to recovery is finally over. The 28-year-old wing announced a few weeks ahead of training camp that he was back to full health and he would 100 percent by Opening Night.

So, what does Hayward's return mean for the Celtics? Well, look at it this way: Boston won 55 regular season games in 2017-18 and made it all the way to the Eastern Conference Finals without him. That same team will now add a proven All-Star to the rotation who is right in the midst of his prime.

Hayward's last full season in 2016-17 included averages of 21.9 points, 5.4 rebounds and 3.5 points per game, along with shooting clips of 47.1 percent from the field and 39.8 percent from 3-point range.

As Al Horford recently pointed out to Celtics.com, "He can just do so many things on the floor. He's a really, really elite 3-point shooter, he can drive the ball, defends really well and rebounds. He just does it all. So, I think he's going to really open the game up a lot and make people better."

In other words, this Celtics team has the potential to reach even greater heights this season with a healthy Hayward on the floor.

JAYLEN BROWN

Jaylen Brown made leaps and bounds from his rookie season to his sophomore campaign. The 6-foot-7 wing saw his averages more than double in the points, assists, steals and blocks departments, as he transitioned from a second-unit role player to a high-profile, two-way starter.

Brown's 14.5 PPG ranked second on the team behind Kyrie Irving and his 39.5 percent clip from 3-point range was a vast improvement over his rookie mark of 34.1 percent. He also rose to the occasion during the postseason, dropping 18.0 PPG to help the Celtics get all the way to the Eastern Conference Finals.

The 21-year-old has made a name for himself with his exceptional athleticism and high-flying dunks, but what often goes overlooked is his profound impact on the defensive end. Brown was regularly counted upon last season to guard the opposition's top player, and his 3.8 defensive win shares, good for seventh in the league, proved just how strong of an influence he was on that end.

The scary thing is that Brown seems to be just beginning to tap into his potential. He's a diligent worker who spends hours fine-tuning his game and attacking his weaknesses, so his third year in the league is primed to be even greater than the previous two as long as he maintains his strong work ethic.

JAYSON TATUM

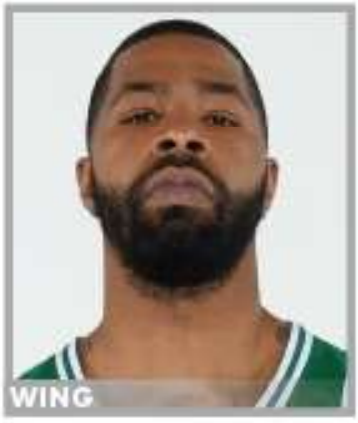
Celtics fans had high hopes for Jayson Tatum heading into his rookie campaign, but let's be honest: no one expected him to be this good this fast.

At just 19 years old, Tatum found himself in the starting lineup right off the bat last season and was heavily relied upon to help fill the void of Hayward from Opening Night all the way through to the end of the postseason.

Tatum's 13.9 PPG, 5.0 RPG and 43.4 percent clip from beyond the arc helped him to earn a spot on the All-Rookie First Team, but by the time the Playoffs rolled around he was playing like he belonged on the All-NBA squad. The 6-foot-9 wing led the Celtics in scoring during the postseason, averaging 18.5 PPG while coming just one point shy of Kareem Abdul-Jabaar's rookie playoff scoring record of 352 total points.

After experiencing consistent development throughout his first season, Tatum found himself entering the summer hungry for more. He spent much of this past offseason in the gym, and even got to work out and learn from some of his childhood idols, including Kobe Bryant and Penny Hardaway.

If Tatum's steady growth curve continues to rise throughout his second season, he could find himself on the verge of superstardom before we know it.



MARCUS MORRIS

Although his first campaign in green was hampered by nagging knee soreness, Marcus Morris proved to be a key asset for the Celtics on their quest to the 2018 Eastern Conference Finals.

The seventh-year veteran saw action in 54 regular season games, splitting his time between the first and second units, while averaging 13.6 PPG, 5.4 RPG and shooting 36.8 percent from 3-point range. He also appeared in all 19 postseason contests and put up 12.4 PPG and 5.4 RPG, all while connecting on 41.7 percent of his long-range shots.

Morris brings versatility and grittiness to Boston's frontcourt, as he possesses the strength to body up against power forwards and centers, as well as the agility and quickness to keep up with small forwards and guards.

Offensively, the 6-foot-9 swingman thrives in isolation situations and lives for the opportunity to take – and make – crunch-time shots.

Above all else, Morris brings a toughness factor to the team of which the blue-collar city of Boston has fallen in love. He will always stand up for his colleagues during times of unrest and is as loyal of a teammate as there is in the NBA.

It's not clear at this time how much Hayward's return will impact Morris' role for the 2018-19 season, but there is no question that the C's will lean on his veteran leadership and fearlessness throughout the campaign.

2018-19 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

SEMI OJELEYE

The first three things that likely come to mind at the mention of Semi Ojeleye's name are: muscles, muscles and more muscles. However, the 6-foot-7, 235-pound wing, proved to be more than just an impressive physical specimen during his rookie season with the C's.

From Day 1, Coach Stevens raved about Ojeleye's NBA-ready defensive ability, and that skill set is what allowed the second-round draft pick to make 90 regular season and playoff appearances.

It was Ojeleye's defense that Al Horford claims got the Celtics past the Milwaukee Bucks in the first round of the Playoffs, as the 23-year-old's insertion into the starting lineup during Games 5, 6 and 7 helped to slow down Bucks superstar Giannis Antetokounmpo to help lift Boston into the second round.

While Ojeleye is already displaying the potential of becoming an elite defender, he is also beginning to show signs of developing into a threat on the other end of the floor. His shooting confidence began to rise toward the end of the 2017-18 regular season, as he knocked down 50 percent of his 3-pointers during the Celtics' final 10 games. On top of that, his raw strength gives him the potential of being a powerful rim-driver in the future.

So yes, Ojeleye may have enough muscles to hold the entire team bus on his back, but he's got a whole lot more to offer than that as he enters his sophomore season and beyond.

THE BIGS

As their title indicates, the bigs are the largest players on the floor. They're responsible for banging bodies in the post, protecting the rim and using their tall vantage points to communicate to the defense. The Celtics have five players who share this role.

AL HORFORD

Having the right type of leader can go a long way for a team fighting its way through the NBA Playoffs. Such was the case last season for Celtics, who relied heavily on veteran big man Al Horford to steer their young, inexperienced ship to success.

With All-Stars Gordon Hayward and Kyrie Irving sidelined for the postseason, Horford was the guy that all of Boston's young players looked toward for guidance. Coach Stevens called him "the rock" of the team as it battled all the way to Game 7 of the Eastern Conference Finals.

Horford's role with the Celtics isn't to rack up huge numbers – he averaged 12.9 points, 7.4 rebounds and 4.7 assists per game last season, while shooting a career-high 42.9 percent from long range – but his communication, court vision and game management on both ends of the floor were what kept the Celtics glued together during times of hardship. Coaches around the league recognized Horford's expertise in those areas and voted him into the 2018 All-Star Game as a reserve.

The 32-year-old's leadership on the defensive end is what should be cherished most by Celtics fans. His versatility and rim protection on that end helped guide Boston to the best defensive rating in the league and earned him a spot on the All-Defensive Second Team.

Hayward and Irving are set to return for the 2018-19 season, but Horford's role as a leader should in no way be diminished. He'll be the rock of the frontcourt, as well as the cool, calm and collected presence that keeps all of his teammates on the same page throughout the upcoming campaign.

ARON BAYNES

Horford was the only Celtic who collected any defensive hardware last season, but his new starting frontcourt mate made just as much of an impact on that end of the floor.

Aron Baynes was the brick wall of Boston's league-leading defense, fearlessly taking on any opponent and contesting every shot attempted within his vicinity. The 6-foot-10 Australian center often flew under the radar, but his elite vertical awareness, lateral quickness and willingness to do the dirty work down low landed him the best individual defensive rating in the league among players who played at least half of the season.

During his first season in green, Baynes averaged 6.0 points and 5.4 rebounds per game while playing 18.3 minutes per contest. He was also Boston's most durable player, seeing action in a team-high 81 games.

Baynes entered free agency this summer knowing that his role would likely be reduced if he remained with the Celtics due to the anticipated returns of Hayward and Irving. However, the veteran big man had developed a great sense of Celtic Pride over the past year and couldn't see himself signing anywhere else.

Baynes claimed that he ultimately wanted to be with a team that could contend for a title. And in Boston, the defensive stalwart should be able to help the C's do just that.

2018-19 ROSTER BREAKDOWN

DANIEL THEIS

The Celtics made a plethora of marquee moves during the summer of 2017, but one that went nearly unnoticed was the signing of Daniel Theis.

Theis made a seamless transition from international hoops to the NBA, sliding into Boston's rotation with ease. By the fourth game of the season, the 6-foot-9 rookie was already earning significant minutes and Stevens was praising his energy on a near-nightly basis.

The German native would wind up averaging 5.3 points and 4.3 rebounds per game, all while shooting a team-high 54.1 percent from the field. Many of his points came by way of dunks, often finding himself on the receiving end of an alley-oop pass.

In mid-March, Theis' campaign came to an abrupt, heartbreaking end, as he tore his left meniscus during the final minute of a game against the Indiana Pacers. The injury called for season-ending surgery, but he has returned to full strength just in time for the 2018-19 season.

GUERSCHON YABUSELE

It's hard not to love Guerschon Yabusele. The French-born Dancing Bear has brought an infectious, vibrant attitude to Boston, and his potential on the court is just as bright.

Yabusele saw limited action last season, appearing in just 33 games last season, but he brought phenomenal energy to Boston's bench unit whenever he was on the floor.

At 6-foot-8, 260 pounds, the forward boasts an imposing figure, but he's also surprisingly agile for his size. He runs the floor well, has great strength and even has a solid 3-point shot, which is often followed by a celebratory bow-and-arrow dab.

At just 22 years old, the international big man still has a lot of room for growth, but he's shown great promise during his short tenure with the Celtics so far.

ROBERT WILLIAMS

The Celtics have needed a bona fide shot-blocker for years, and that's exactly what they hauled in from the 2018 NBA Draft. Boston used its lone draft pick to select 20-year-old Robert Williams, an athletic, defensive specialist who uses his imposing, 7-foot-6 wingspan to wreak havoc around the rim.

Williams spent two seasons at Texas A&M, where he earned back-to-back SEC Defensive Player of the Year honors while averaging 11.1 points, 8.7 rebounds and 2.5 blocks per game.

The 6-foot-9 big man from Shreveport, Louisiana has been dealing with a case of knee tendonitis since Summer League, but he hopes to be ready to go by the start of the season.

AUERBACH CENTER

THE AUERBACH CENTER AT NEW BALANCE WORLD HEADQUARTERS

June 19, 2018 – BOSTON, MA – The 17-time NBA Champion Boston Celtics together with New Balance Athletics and NB Development opened the Auerbach Center at New Balance World Headquarters today as the team's official practice facility. The 70,000 square foot structure at Boston Landing boasts best-in-class technology and equipment across strength and conditioning, recovery, sports science, and nutrition - each geared towards optimizing athlete performance.

The Auerbach Center, or "Red's House," is the centerpiece of the wide-ranging initiative between the Boston Celtics and New Balance. The relationship includes a shared focus on performance, innovation and community giveback, and has its origins in a little-known but formative friendship between the patriarchs of the two Boston institutions.

The bond dates back to the late 1970s, when Arnold "Red" Auerbach, then the President and General Manager of the Boston Celtics, served as a mentor to current New Balance Chairman, Jim Davis. The two entrepreneurial minds met regularly to share thinking on establishing winning cultures for their respective organizations. That spirit remains intact and informed every aspect of this collaboration.

"The Auerbach Center will be the foundation on which future great Celtics teams will be built," said Wyc Grousbeck, Boston Celtics Governor and Managing Partner. "We are so glad to honor Red, the architect of Celtic Pride, in this way, and to work with New Balance to build this stunning facility."

"New Balance is extremely proud to join with the Boston Celtics in honoring Red Auerbach's professional achievements and personal values of teamwork and integrity through the opening of 'Red's House' at Boston Landing," said Jim Davis, Chairman at New Balance. "Red Auerbach was a true entrepreneur whose passion for winning and dedication to the sport of basketball and the Boston Celtics was equally matched with his commitment to people and the Boston community."

"Boston Landing is a great example of successful collaboration between the private and public sector to expand development opportunities for the Allston-Brighton community," said Governor Baker. "Our administration has been pleased to play a role in this area's expansion and we look forward to seeing the Boston Celtics and New Balance open the Auerbach Center to honor Red Auerbach's legacy and use the space to build leaders on the court and in the community."

"Red Auerbach's legacy burns bright in Boston, and nowhere is that more evident than right at Red's House," said Mayor Walsh. "This new facility brings our Celtics home, so they won't just be winning in Boston, but they'll be training in Boston as well. I thank the Celtics and New Balance for making Boston a championship city, for earning the banners, for honoring Red's legacy and putting an emphasis on community, making sure the spirit of the team also extends into Boston's neighborhoods."

STATE-OF-THE-ART FACILITY

The 70,000 square-foot Auerbach Center is a striking addition to Boston Landing, cantilevered 55 feet in the air out to the edge of the Mass Pike and its hundreds of thousands of weekly commuters. It features a forty-foot glass wall that overlooks the practice courts and replicas of the team's 17 NBA Championship banners.

The comprehensive training facility has a wide range of features to optimize player performance, health, and recovery, as well as build team camaraderie, through the integration of:

- Two full-sized parquet floor NBA basketball courts
- Sports science lab and performance equipment, including floor-embedded force plates, and other systems for detailed player-performance data collection
- Expanded strength and conditioning, training, and recovery facilities, including a 40-foot exercise pool, hydrotherapy pools, and a float tank
- Medical exam room with GE Medical Imaging and measuring equipment
- Specially attuned energy efficient GE lighting systems
- Full commercial kitchen and nutrition facilities
- Leading edge audio-visual technology throughout the facility
- Best-in-class players' locker rooms, auxiliary men's and women's locker rooms, players' lounge, and nap room
- Expanded media work room, press conference, and broadcast facilities
- Flexible hospitality area designed for community relations activities, partner gatherings, and other guest events
- Enhanced work space for the team's coaching and basketball front office staffs

COMMITMENT TO COMMUNITY

One of the many shared values between the Boston Celtics and New Balance is a commitment to community. In keeping with this joint mission, the Celtics worked with New Balance Foundation to renovate the basketball court at the West End House Boys & Girls Club in Allston. Celtics Head Coach Brad Stevens led a basketball clinic at the Club to celebrate the renovation. The clinic was the first of several community initiatives on which the organizations will collaborate.

TD GARDEN

TD GARDEN

TD Garden, owned and operated by Delaware North, first opened its doors to the public on September 30, 1995. Located in the heart of the City of Boston and convenient to public transportation, TD Garden is an attractive destination for locals and Boston visitors alike.

In the 20 plus years since its opening, New England's premiere sports and entertainment arena hosts approximately 3.5 million people and 200 events annually. It is the proud home of the NHL's Boston Bruins, an original six franchise, and the NBA's storied Boston Celtics. Thanks to these high-profile tenants, TD Garden's rafters house more championship banners than any other professional sports arena in the country.

In addition to world-renowned concerts, sporting events, family shows, wrestling, and ice shows, the arena has played host to countless marquee events, including the Democratic National Convention, NHL All-Star Game, NCAA Frozen Fours, NCAA Women's Final Four, U.S. Gymnastics Olympic Trials, U.S. Figure Skating Championships and ISU World Figure Skating Championships, among others. TD Garden is proud to continue to attract these types of high caliber events to Boston and, in turn, generate more than $365 million in direct economic impact to the Greater Boston region over the last 20 years.

TD Garden's parent company, Delaware North, continues to be committed to reinvesting in TD Garden and making the arena the high water mark for best in class arenas in both experience and service. In 2014, Charlie Jacobs, CEO of Delaware North's Boston Holdings, along with TD Garden president Amy Latimer, launched a 2-year privately financed, $70 million arena-wide upgrade to TD Garden. This comprehensive renovation focused on bringing all aspects of fan experience to the next level, from redesigned concourses and concessions, to a new ProShop and technology overhaul

Extending the guest experience beyond the four walls of TD Garden is paramount to it its leadership, which is why Delaware North and Boston Properties broke ground on a joint venture project called The Hub on Causeway in 2016. The Hub on Causeway a 1.5-million square foot mixed-use project that is being constructed on the 2.5-acre site of the original Boston Garden. This transit-oriented development, featuring a new, main entrance, expansion of the arena, retail, office space, hotel, and residential building, is a significant investment that will bring substantial improvements to North Station, create major economic impact for the area and strengthen the viability of this important district in the City of Boston.

TD Garden's all-new, state of the art digital marquee on the exterior of the arena solidifies its place as the 'gateway' to the City. The digital marquee is a 3,000 square foot LED screen that is integrated with the arena's pre-existing exterior lighting elements and providing the public with real time game updates, upcoming event notifications, and amplifies community initiatives that are supported by Garden Neighborhood Charities, TD Garden's philanthropic arm.

Delaware North, owner and operator of TD Garden, is one of the largest privately-held hospitality and food service companies in the world. Founded in 1915 and owned by the Jacobs family for more than 100 years, Delaware North has global operations at high-profile places such as sports and entertainment venues, national and state parks, destination resorts and restaurants, airports, and regional casinos.
